PART II. ARCHITECTURAL INFORMATION

A. General Statement:

This structure is a large, yet typical, example of barn construction in this area. It is in very dilapidated condition, and, since it serves no modern use, the owners have no plans for saving the building from total ruin.

B. Technical Description:

Large, timber frame building with clapboard sheathing. Very few, small windows. Two and one half story main part with lower two story ell at right angles. Gable roof with modern sheet metal covering.
